

Dr. DuBois At Vassar And Yale

ATLANTA, Ga.—Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, head of the department of sociology, Atlanta university and editor of Phylon, is lecturing this week at Vassar college, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. and at Yale university, New Haven, Conn.

At Vassar he spoke on The Future of Africa in America and emphasizing the demand for democracy on the part of the thirty million persons of African descent on the American continent.

At Yale he is conducting Professor Kennedy's class on "American Society"; then after a dinner given by the Graduate club, he addresses the club and its friends on The Future of Europe in Africa.